KOMPUTER ENTHUSIASTS OF GREATER SEATTLE

Prez Says:

Jon Mercer

Welcome to September. I hope your Labor Day holiday went well.

Right now Microsoft Office Gemini (2015?) is in internal beta testing; it has a hopeful release date of later this year.

Microsoft Windows Threshold (Windows 9?) is still in early development, but there is talk of a developer's preview release possibly in the September/October time frame. There are some radical changes from 8 to 9, so it will be interesting to see and use them first hand.

I won't be making it to the General Meeting this month due to work travel. I am in Oregon supporting a hardware company Microsoft bought in 2012 called Perceptive Pixel. They make very large touch- screen TVs. You can read about them at <http://perceptivepixel.azurewebsites.net/>

If you ever want to send mail to the next Supercluster in space, you will need to address your return as Earth, Sol System, Milky Way galaxy, Local Group of galaxies, Virgo Cluster of galaxy groups, and now add Laniakea Supercluster. <http://www.nbcnews.com/science/space/add-line-our-galactic-address-laniakea-supercluster-n194841>

Google is developing its own quantum computer chips to use for internal research. <http://www.cnet.com/news/google-looks-to-build-quantum-computer-chips/>

If you're looking for solutions to back up your data but can't spend your whole paycheck, you might like these (CNET):

1. Synology DiskStation DS1513+, $880: <http://cnet.co/WckUhu>
2. LaCie Rugged Thunderbolt All-Terrain Portable Drive, $299: <http://cnet.co/1xbF9gm>
3. LaCie Christofle Sphere, $490: <http://cnet.co/1xbF8sI>
4. WD My Passport Pro, $429: <http://cnet.co/WckRCm>

There is a new Nvidia Tegra K1 192 core GPU Processor that could be coming to a car near you. <http://international.download.nvidia.com/automotive/pdf/autonomous-cars.pdf>
